

Museum Guide

Welcome to Provand's Lordship, the oldest house in Glasgow, built in 1471. Following extensive restoration and a donation of a fine collection of 17th-century Scottish furniture by Sir William Burrell, it provides a real flavour of what a home interior of around 1700 would have looked like.

Behind the house you can visit the St Nicholas Garden with its strange stone masks, known as the Tontine Faces. Don't miss the 'must-see' features highlighted on this floor plan.

Provand's Lordship run a series of events throughout the year, including the annual Provand's Fun Day every summer. For details, visit the Enquiry Desk or ask one of the staff.

Across the street you can visit St Mungo Museum of Religious Life and Art where you can find a café and shop.

For more information about Provand's Lordship or any of Glasgow Museums' 12 venues, please visit our website at www.glasgowmuseums.com.

Entry to Provand's Lordship has always been free. Donations in the donation box in the main foyer are welcome.

If you have any queries during your visit please ask any of the Visitor Assistants.

We hope you enjoy your visit and look forward to seeing you again.
